KUROPATKIN SHOWS CONSUMMATE SKILL

Prevents Oyama From Reaping Fruits of His Victory After Losing Nearly 10,000 Men. An Early Resumption of Conflict.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 22—11:05 p. m.—With the closing of the week the semi-panic produced by the heavy reverse sustained by General Kuropatkin [illegible] with the [illegible] have disappeared, and there is a much more cheerful feeling prevailing in the war office. The general disaster which threatened to engulf the Manchurian army has been averted by the results [illegible] days of almost continuous fighting, which hereby is practically a draw.

General Kuropatkin has again displayed consummate skill in preventing Field Marshal Oyama from reaping the fruits of victory. By withdrawing his shattered left wing under shelter of the [illegible] he succeeded in practically saving it, taking to the mountains off the line of battle, and more than this, he reorganized and re-formed his broken legions, and again confronts the Japanese across the Shakhe river.

Will Soon Renew Conflict.

A resumption of the conflict on a large scale is believed to be imminent and St. Petersburg hopes that the vanquished in last week's battle will capture in the finale fighting.

That Kuropatkin after losing close to 10,000 men was able to resume the offensive within a fortnight constitutes a feat in military history. There was an impression early in the week that General Kuropatkin was concentrating his forces on the right and center to avoid being driven off the line of the railroad, which might have compromised the retirement of his left, but now he has had ample time to withdraw, and the situation shows [illegible] strong entrenched positions across the Shakhe. It is known that the left has already pushed forward steadily and the fact that the operations now complete only rear guard actions seems reassuring.

Kuropatkin Fortifying.

Nevertheless dispatches to the Associated Press from Mukden today say that Kuropatkin has been fortifying positions on the Hun river behind him, which might indicate that he purposes only to make an active defense below Mukden. Another advance on either side would compromise a movement by [illegible] as yet developed.

The general situation is by no means serious. It simply attributes the cessation of operations to the natural exhaustion of both sides, but does not offer a clew to what is anticipated. It is significant, however, with what satisfaction the capture of Sinchin town was received here. The taking of the town is considered an important strategical stroke, placing General Kuropatkin in complete mastery of both sides of the Shakhe river between the railroad and the Mukden-Benitsputze roads and lessening the communications against the possibility of being cut off from the south. The only point of the left bank of the Shakhe remaining in Japanese hands is Lanchiatung within rifle shot. The bridge has presumably been confounded with the Shakhe station, five miles north, the report that the Russians had bombarded the station applying to the bridge, as the station is now beyond the sphere of their operations.

Point of Next Collision.

The heavy concentration of both Russians and Japanese between the Mukden road and the railroad points certain a tremendous collision at this point. The Associated Press learns that a portion of the Eighth army corps which had reached Mukden is hurrying southward.

While the Japanese are determined to pursue the policy followed by them since the beginning of the war, of concealing the extent of their losses, the war office believes that their casualties must be at least three-fourths as great as those of the Russians—probably [illegible] Russians.

The weather has again become clear, but is very cold and the soldiers are reported to be suffering. A correspondent who left Liaoyang Friday night found Friday night for a detachment of Cossacks. They were unwashed and half frozen and were conveyed to the Russian camp where they were served for arithmetic, geography, history and language lessons to Mrs. Vedits, and Miss Baker, a teacher in the local institute, explained the manner of teaching people affected like Miss Sullivan.

Critical About Art.

The rest of the day was spent in viewing the other parts of the fair. "People would allow Lottie privileges that were forbidden to others," said Mrs. Vedits in the Liberal Arts building, the exhibitors allowed her to feel of the statues and different works in bronze and marble. Miss Sullivan would then tell her friends if she thought the work examined was beautiful or not.

"I was most interested in the Transportation buildings," said Miss Sullivan. "I met a man there who was very kind to me and showed me all the different works of machinery. I was most interested in automobiles. My friend explained all the different makes to me and I grew to become very familiar with their workings. I think that the French machines the far superior to those that are made in our country, because they are fitted up so elegantly."

What Lottie Saw.

Mrs. Vedits explained that Lottie would feel of the different parts of the machinery, and she would tell her what the gentleman said their use was. The gentleman also took her several automobile rides, which she enjoyed very much.

"I was very much surprised in the Japanese colony," said Miss Sullivan. "The Philippine and Indian exhibits were also fine; in fact I spent more time in the Philippine village than any other national exhibit."

Mrs. Vedits explained that Lottie would examine the noses and dresses of the Japs and Philippines and comment upon their unfulness in Colorado climate.

"We spent several days in the United States government building, and found much to interest us there," said Miss Sullivan. "They had a raised relief map of the United States and I was able to find out a good deal about our country, but I think Colorado beats all the states."

Least Bit Homesick.

"We had a map in the schoolroom where I recited in the afternoon, and whenever anyone would ask me which was the best state, I would point out Colorado. I think I got the least bit homesick for Colorado Springs and I was very glad to get home."

"Did you visit the Pike?" was asked. "Oh yes, we went to all the best attractions. I was very much interested in Hagenbeck's animal show. The attendants allowed me to examine all the tamer animals, and Mrs. Vedits explained the tricks which they performed. I think they are trained wonderfully well. I rode on one of the camels in the Asia exhibit, but did not enjoy that very much. I prefer to ride horseback."

Petted Jim Keys.

"I also enjoyed seeing Jim Keys, the educated horse. I petted him several times to-day and he did them all on the stage and examine the horse. He was a homelike animal.

"We visited the Wild West exhibition, and I would not enjoy it very much. However, I thought the Deer war was fine and I clicked it several times." Mrs. Vedits said that Lottie got so that she could distinguish between a cannon, calling gun and a rifle by the vibration she felt when they were fired.

"The most fun I had at the fair was [illegible] Miss Sullivan. "I rode on the Ferris wheel and shot the chutes several times, but the gallery was the best of the three. I rode on that every time I could get anyone to take me."

A Terrible Accident.

Miss Sullivan was in St. Louis on Helen Keller day and had the pleasure of meeting her. Miss Keller is the most remarkable deaf blind person in the world, and Lottie herself, has often been called the "Helen Keller of Colorado." Mrs. Vedits said that, when the two girls met, they threw their arms around each other and became the best of friends.

Lottie also met Mr. Wade of Oakmont, Pennsylvania, who has done so much for the deaf and blind children of this country. Last year Lottie made the clothes for, and dressed a doll and sent it to one of Mr. Wade's granddaughters. Mr. Wade was so pleased with Lottie that he promised to send her a sewing machine next Christmas.

COUNTY BOASTS OF NEW SETTLEMENT

Thriving Little Colony Has Been Formed East of Calhan—Over 100 Voters Raising Good Crops.

F. L. Rouse, county commissioner, writes as follows concerning the new settlement that has sprung up east of Calhan:

The establishment of any industry is always of interest and the story of a settlement springing up in a few months from a grass covered plain to cultivated fields—homes, barns, and the ever-present school house—had it not been so often repeated in the west, would be quite akin to a fairy tale.

A settlement of over a hundred voters has dropped into our county without any announcement by the newspapers. Quietly going about raising crops, improving their farms and the children go to school as though they had been here and lived their lives in Union Hill, for that is the name of the new colony 15 miles south east of Calhan. Honest, industrious people, whose thrift is shown by the different cultivation of their crops. Everything shows the care given to the work in hand—alfalfa, oats, corn, sugar beets, potatoes are yielding a bountiful harvest. Macaroni wheat never tried before in this county has proved a success and has yielded this year from 20 to 35 bushels to the acre.

Every crop that has been cultivated in this colony has given a bountiful yield. While the people have been busily engaged in material things, the school has not been forgotten. A comfortable school house has been built equipped with good seats and an organ. Maps and such appliances as are usually found in country schools. The building also is used every Sunday for church and Sunday school. One of the settlers is a clergyman and is in every way capable of filling a pulpit in any community.

These people all have friends in the east who would like a healthful home to join them in the future.

The time seems close when eastern El Paso county will be settled by a thrifty class of farmers who will have to handle the soil and find crops that will grow without irrigation. The writer well remembers when it was believed that 100 miles west of the Missouri river was utterly unfit for cultivation and would here, be settled except by cattle men and buffalo hunters. Now it is the most productive and desirable part of Kansas and Nebraska. The conditions of eastern El Paso county are more favorable for agriculture than were the surroundings of Kansas in 1870. With the experience of the past it is not safe to predict a like future for this county?

NINETEEN OUT OF 20 PASSENGERS ABOARD COACH EXPRESS FOR LAW AND ORDER POLICY.

We took a straw ballot of the 22 passengers in our coach, said Mr. E. C. Dozier, last evening. They found 19 for Peabody and four for Adams.

Mr. Dozier was talking about his recent trip to the best fields of the western slope and was telling of an incident on the train between Grand Junction and Delta. He and Mr. E. F. Davis were together and, talking over the political situation, it occurred to them to test the sentiment of those in their car and they did with the above result.

Mr. Dozier went to look at the best fields in which the DeRemer-Davis Investment company of this city is interested in. "We have a fine crop of beets this year," he said. "The outlook for the best sugar industry is very good."

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

How People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purposes.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better it is—not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other pungent vegetables.

Charcoal clarifies the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels. It disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered willow charcoal and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting pastilles, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but, on the contrary, great benefit will.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the use of them, for they remove the cause of many liver troubles, such as torpid liver, biliousness and indigestion, in fact I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the [illegible] charcoal tablets."

MINORS WILL ASK FOR MODIFICATION

From indications the meeting of the National Baseball association in New York this week to which representatives from the two major leagues and 16 representatives from the minor organizations will be present, will bring up a number of warm discussions from both sides.

The minor baseball leaders have asked for a modification of the national agreement which governs relationships of the major and minor leagues in their respective territories. The principal change asked for is a radical change in the method of drafting players. Under the present system players are drafted, if they can find a buyer, at a stipulated price. Under the new arrangement if carried out, it would give the minor leagues an option for selling their players unless they wanted to accept other terms on the playing men. The new plan provides that the drafting would not take place until the season was over. Then the drafting has just begun, probably. Then if he was sold in advance of the draft, it would be up to the minor league magnate, whenever he chose the player was to be turned in, to name the price he wanted to accept for his player.

It would also limit the number of players from the minor leagues that could be drafted from any club. A team in a major league, which does not be compelled to carry a certain number of players on its reserve list, instead of as at present, any number can be drafted from any club. A team in a minor

The situation as regards the crusade against the gambling rooms in this city is, on the part of the "club" managers, one of uncertainty and on the part of the city officials one of determination.

It is understood that two of the "clubs" have already closed down pending developments and others are expected to close down at midnight tomorrow night, at the latest, as after that they will come under the ban of the edict recently issued from police headquarters that the "club" managers would have until Tuesday to get things into shape for closing.

HELD UP HORSE AND DRIVER AND THOUGHT IT GOOD JOKE

Dan Campbell, a well known character about town who has figured frequently in police court records on charges of drunkenness, was again before Judge Bell this morning on the charge but it was hardly Dan's fault that the charge was not "intoxication and beyond."

Dan was arrested on Cucharras street, near the Alamo late Friday night. When arrested he had hold of the bridle of a horse drawing a buggy in which was a young man and Officer James Davis came up just as Dan asked the stranger if he was going to pay "that $40." The officer asked what was the matter and Dan said: "The man owes me $40. The stranger replied that he did not owe Dan a cent and in fact had never seen him before.

The officer made Dan let go the bridle of the [illegible] officer an uncomplimentary [illegible] and after taking the gentleman to appear in police court yesterday morning, sent Dan hauled to the "cooler."

In yesterday morning Dan had "cooled off" to such an extent that he was ready to admit that he was "only fooling" but Judge Bennett said "$20 and costs" and Dan lost sight of the joke.

Gazette Story of Bunco Game Caused Big Stir in Manitou.

The account of the bunco game attempted on Mrs. Nellie Stephens of Manitou, which appeared in the Gazette yesterday morning, has caused quite a stir in Manitou business circles, as the visit of a man answering the description of Mrs. Stephen's visitor, is distinctly recalled.

This man was small in stature and dark in complexion. He called upon several of the business men of Manitou and asked them about different pieces of property in and about that town. Property in Manitou Heights addition seemed to be the most attractive to him.

The man has apparently dropped out of sight. Mrs. Stephen has again in her possession the deed which was borrowed from her and which she had such trouble in regaining, so the [illegible] man is found or not.

Y QUESTION NG GERMANY

OLD AGENCY DE- ASED, BY TWO —KAISER TAKES A FIGHT.

—The Lippe-Detmold is still being carried on notwithstanding that the has announced that he with Prince Leopold's agent. Meanwhile the Count Bruchausen has been a member of the Lippe-Detmold Assembly. By the the lease in question expires on Thursday of this week. Prince Leopold, however, has declared for the abolition of the agency, and there is no doubt that the Assembly will support him. Count Bruchausen has been a prominent politician, and during recent years has been a member of the Assembly. By the Count's death in October the Viceroyalty becomes extinct. Prince Leopold, however, is still the Regent of Lippe-Detmold, and will continue to be during the minority of Prince Alexander of Lippe-Biesterfeld, who succeeded his father, Prince Woldemar, who died in 1895.

The Lippe-Detmold question has caused the Emperor William considerable annoyance, and it is said that he has been urging Prince Leopold to settle the matter himself, and not to leave it to the Assembly. The Emperor is said to have declared that he would not be present at the wedding of Princess Alexandra of Lippe-Biesterfeld, unless the question was settled before the ceremony took place. Prince Leopold, however, has refused to be dictated to, and the Emperor will not be present at the wedding.

Prince Waldemar of Prussia, who died March 21, 1879, was a cousin of Prince Leopold, and was married to the Princess Augusta Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, who is now the Empress of Germany. Prince Waldemar was a great favorite with the people, and his death was deeply regretted. He was also a favorite with the Emperor, who was present at the funeral. The Princess Augusta Victoria is a sister of Prince Alexander of Lippe-Biesterfeld, who succeeded his father, Prince Woldemar, who died in 1895.

MERICAN INVASION IN LAND OF SCOT

CAPITAL FROM THE UNITED STATES POURING INTO COUNTRY AND INVESTMENTS ARE GROWING RAPIDLY.

Edinburgh, Oct. 21.—American capital is flowing freely into Scotland. Perhaps this is in compensation for the number of Scotsmen who have found a career in the states.

The latest investment in the direction is a New York firm of builders, who is at Dalmellington on the borders of the two big counties of Perth and Inverness. A large plant is to be

Besides the works the Westinghouse and such things already on the site, large buildings are being taken in hand. A start was made last week with the working of the new grain elevators at Leith, owned by a well-known company at Port Rowan, Ont. Elevators are now in Scotland, and these are also first erected. The same company is looking for a site for one in Glasgow.

The two elevators, one for large ships and the other for barges, will handle all the warehouse is to be a million bushels, represents an outlay of $250,000. It is a novelty here to see 60 tons of grain per hour discharged out of a steamer, and Scottish merchants and grain importers are keenly watching the smoothly working machinery.

Large Factory Completed.

At Kilbowie, near Glasgow, the largest factory in the country has just been completed. It is a new cabinet-making factory in connection with an American sewing machine works. It is 600 feet long, 70 feet wide, and the two floors reach up to a height of 80 feet.

Sunday Reading

By Rev. [illegible] Lyon, D.D.

THE greatest of all blunders is the one we are here to mark. Blunders are a subject for ridicule; weak men who are defeated by them. Strong men accept their failures and make use of them. [illegible] anything is common to man; that is to blunder. Blunder is like sin, universal. In the Cæsar library, Chicago, it is said there is a book in which are men, out of work, have written of "the greatest blunder of their life." Here are some of them: "Didn't save what I earned." "Did not as a boy realize the value of an education." "If I had taken better care of my money, I would be better in health and in morals." "Did not realize the importance of sticking to one kind of employment." "The greatest blunder of my life was when I took my first drink." "The greatest blunder was when I left school in the fifth grade." "Self-conceit and not Bradstreet to my parents." "Was in too great a hurry to get rich." "Was in too far away my time when at school." "The turning point of my life was when I ran away from home at 15." It is noticeable that not one acknowledged to having made the greatest blunder in not accepting Jesus Christ as savior. If those men had taken the Christian religion for their guide in youth it would have been in their life as the ballast to the ship; it would have steadied their progress. Christ in the life has kept many a man from making a blunder. The greatest character a young man can make is not to take Christ as my counsel in youth. The leader of all blunders is refusal now to yield allegiance to Jesus.

Stage Life vs. Pulpit Conviction.

Nothing has made a deeper impression upon me, when I read the life of the great orator, when he had risen to the height of triumph, Mme. Ristori, the tragedienne, has not for many years appeared on the stage. She said to an interviewer recently: "I am done with the operatic stage forever. Stage life and acting in general are conditions not at hand in my mind, there are many things incidental to it to which I did not take kindly. . . . Never were words more truly spoken than were these, directed as they are against the influence of the stage. Yet we find those same words, or at least the substance of them, repeated by an actress at the close of a successful season on the stage. A prima donna on the stage has more attraction for those than a prima donna in the church choir. What a man said per time and cut pushed up the ten dollars into a current coal in the jewelry and complain it asked to give to cause to minister work to all unconscious statements a solution.

A Heartless Fraud.

The United States government has caught a very serious charge against a Chicago firm that make the cork material used in life preservers. If the charge be true it is almost incredible that these people should be carpers of news and social as to put into a life preserver in order to make it come up to the standard of weight which is prescribed by the government would be hard to credit were it not for the frauds and deceptions that are constantly practiced in many lines of manufacture. But this crime is so shocking in contemplation of results that the government should spare no time or money in rounding down the guilty parties and bringing them to justice. Besides this fraud has been a heartless one. [illegible] more heartless still is the fraud of those who know the gospel of truth, yet preach a doctrine of [illegible] mixed with it the cork is a life preserver may cause the loss of a precious life, but agree to it myself we prepare for loss of the eternal soul. None but a fraud is he who, knowing the right, will not do it. The preacher is heartless is worse than the corrupt [illegible] One may ruin the body, the other the soul. [illegible] of responsibility upon the shoulders of the latter, when you know them to be such, is to give him a life preserver that will sink him in the hour of disaster.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By William Dexter Lyon.

October 22, 1899. Elijah Fleeing and Strengthened. 1 Kings 19:1-18.

Alley in All Happiness.

Sorrow is to happiness what alloy is to the coin. It is the bright face of peace in the lesson with the commander in chief of all the national forces in Syria. Though he was "captain of the host of the king of Syria, though he stood high in royal favor, though he was a man of valor, one great affliction cast a shadow over all his life: he was a leper. Naaman was a hero. His position seemed most enviable, but the stoutest servant in his household was better off than he. All the silver and honor and wealth of the world could not make him clean. Poor a leper he was Naaman. He stood upon the most loathsome and greatly impaired his usefulness. Every life has its lights and shadows. There is some discord in the sweetest music. There is some real recollection to mar the past; there is a bitter drop in every cup. There is a leprous spot of sin in every heart.

Help From Unexpected Quarter.

We see here now an unknown household, a captive, a slave, one generally little recognized by those with whom she worked, showed the Syrian leader the way to healing. God works in mysterious ways. Man's blunders are often God's opportunities. The little captive maid proved a great blessing to Naaman. She had often heard of the prophet Elisha, the miracles he had wrought and his readiness to help those in distress. She seen in her master suffering and longed to do something that will bring immediate relief. "Would God, my lord were with the prophet in Samaria," were words that fell, perhaps lightly, from her lips. We can scarce tell what moved this maiden to speak. Love for her master's soul may have been in her heart, required in the great general's case and made the name of Jehovah more glorious throughout the Syrian nation.

A Little Child Shall Lead Them.

It was a child that led the great Athenian statesman, Themistocles, to be ostracized from Athens. Pausing in the heavy [illegible] was asked to write the name which he could scarcely [illegible] without reason and without pain. He could not find his name, but the child came and wrote it for him, required in the great general's case and made the name of Jehovah more glorious throughout the Syrian nation.

A Little Child Shall Lead Them.

He could not find his name, but the child came and wrote it for him, [illegible] to be [illegible] to Naaman. This little maid was not able to deliver a lecture on the miracles which were wrought by the prophet, but she could speak the merest word that would astound a nation. Children may be considered [illegible] Among the great leaders, but they can invite people to him. The faith of this child may be our faith. We expect to [illegible] by the power of Heaven. Went to the Wrong Man.

Many make just the mistake Naaman did; they seek salvation in the wrong place. The king of Syria was wise in his generation when he sought Naaman to cure his leper. While Naaman had leprosy on his body, he had a worse one, the leprosy of pride, in his heart. With costly presents and a retinue of servants he went to the king of Syria to get a letter of introduction to the king of Israel. He went to the king of Israel to get a letter of introduction to the king of Israel. He went to the king of Israel to get a letter of introduction to the king of Israel. He went to the king of Israel and the other a guest register of distinguished. After a long wait the court chamberlain leads the way through a large white corridor into a very lofty hall of medium size, which opens on to an exquisite bit of true Japanese landscape gardening filled with artificial rocks and fountains. This is where the foreign ambassadors are presented to the Mikado.

A small throne, the floor is waxed to a high polish, with a small but priceless rug in the center and before the throne. Otherwise not even a chair is visible in the apartment. The walls are ancient, but the ceilings gleam with gold tapestry and costly jewels. The throne room proper is at the rear, while that the other to the mysterious private apartments of the Emperor, where no European has yet entered. And despite the boasted occidentalism of the Japanese, every Japanese from the Emperor down, within a private the traditional kimono and other native garments of the old regime.

The Emperor still sleeps in a room with paper walls on a mattress of dried sea-grass and dines by himself, squatted on the floor. As the Emperor emerges to greet the visitors he walks with the air of a general reviewing his guards. Courtiers now properly bow to His Majesty, and the personal suite of the Emperor count no less than [illegible] of the late Marquis Ito, explains the meaning of the visit. Count Ito was educated in Germany and speaks every European language fluently.

Emperor Mutsuhito is a splendid specimen for a Japanese. He is very tall for a Jap, powerful in his movements when not walking. And his complexion is intensely yellow. His eyes are large, full, black and piercing. Despite his bearing, it cannot be denied that the Mikado is very ugly. The nose is flaky, coarse and unremarkable, while the mouth [illegible] thick lips. The cheeks are [illegible] hollow. The whole face is [illegible] and [illegible] with a [illegible] look.

At a recent interview the Mikado wore a uniform much resembling that of the British admiral, with the exception that the buttons, instead of being gold, were of black enamel. He wears invariably the orders and ribbons of the Supreme Government, and beneath it is two small orders of lesser Japanese orders. The Emperor receives his visitors without a motion of his head and looks at the painted floor. It is for the Emperor to speak the first word by murmuring in Jap a few words of formal welcome. It is antiquated that permits the [illegible] of the Emperor to speak to other [illegible] but his native one. He also started to study French years ago, but quit in disgust.

The palace is decorated in a [illegible] of Japanese and European furniture and art. The palace, however, is heated by a system of steam radiators, which was [illegible] a dozen years ago from America and was [illegible] by American workmen. It is now, however, run by [illegible] adjusted in Japan.

The Empress, who, by the way, is closely related to the Mikado, and is probably a half-sister of that monarch, adheres to native costumes, save in this who be [illegible] from a private source is a charming little woman, who, unlike her husband, has been able to learn French thoroughly, and can even converse fluently in colloquial but uncertain English. The Empress also has [illegible] court costumes modeled on the most after gowns worn by [illegible] Europe. [illegible] for some unexplained [illegible] reason, it has not been adopted by the [illegible]. It is [illegible] the Empress wears the comfortable and undeniably more becoming costume of old Japan. She is [illegible] of Queen Victoria, with, she has been [illegible] was the greatest of modern royal [illegible] to [illegible] of her interests in [illegible] and with a [illegible] to its effect on the Western world has ever been [illegible] erected [illegible] to soothe the anguish of wounded Japanese soldiers.

As a matter of fact every [illegible] and clear-sighted visitor to Japan who has had an opportunity to study the highly [illegible] court etiquette of the Mikado's household has never yet failed to perceive that the entire court play or pageant in Tokio is decidedly artificial, largely [illegible] to the [illegible] actors and actresses themselves. Thus it is [illegible] that the [illegible] perfectly worn by every [illegible] gentleman and a keen determination [illegible] have accomplished a feat perhaps never before [illegible] in the world's [illegible] in creating and adapting [illegible] of ivory would be a short [illegible] for an individual the most useful results of [illegible] civilization. However [illegible] and not practical [illegible] to [illegible] of the [illegible] absorption of Western [illegible] triumph of the Japanese intelligence to [illegible] away those [illegible] and more [illegible] phases of Western life, which are [illegible] necessary to the true and perfect development of the real Japanese spirit.

WHAT THE DRAINAGE TUNNEL HAS DONE

Scheme of a Deeper Bore Is Talked of in Order to Provide for Still Lower Workings. Cost of Pumping.

Special to the Gazette.

Cripple Creek, Oct. 22.—The water level of the district is now standing at an elevation of 8,402 feet above sea level, and flowing from the portal of the El Paso drainage tunnel at the rate of 4,000 gallons per minute. Since the water course was tapped by the drainage tunnel a little over a year ago the water has receded a total of 69 feet. At the Elkton where close lab has been kept on it, the water now stands at a point 39 feet below the eighth level.

The effects of the drainage tunnel have been felt in more ways than one. It is now possible for companies to sink and [illegible] profit, besides allowing them to open up additional ground and make the [illegible] deeper. The beneficial results of the tunnel have been demonstrated [illegible] have helped all the mines of the district with the exception of a few located around Independence and Goldfield, all the ores being connected with the great water course that is now flowing through the portal of the drainage tunnel.

Observations made by the chief engineer, Mr. A. C. Sargent, have been sufficient to cause the mining men of the district to contemplate and lay plans for another deeper and longer tunnel, say to a depth of 2,500 feet, which would guarantee that mining operations could be carried forward without interference from water for the next 50 years. [illegible] will have to set their large pumping machinery to work again, which process it is estimated, costs the companies $6.50 per vertical foot depth to handle the water situation of this district.

RAILROADS AND MILLS ARE RUSHED

MORE ORE THAN THEY CAN HANDLE—BEATS THE RECORD FOR FIVE YEARS PAST—MILLS RUN THREE SHIFTS.

Special to The Gazette.

Cripple Creek, Oct. 22.—The yards of the different railroads of the district are tonight congested with cars of ore. The local smelters and mills are unable to handle the immense tonnage of ore which is now being sent them. Not in five years has there been such a rush of ore. There is scarcely a sampler in the district that is not running three shifts of eight hours per day and even with the long hours and the increase of forces the samplers are utterly unable to treat the large amount of ore now on hand.

ORGANIZATION OF A NEW COMPANY

DIRECTORS ARE MEN CONNECTED WITH BIG CYANIDE MILL PROPOSITION ON IRONCLAD HILL.

Special to The Gazette.

Cripple Creek, Oct. 22.—Articles of incorporation were recorded this morning by the City of Cripple Creek Gold Mining company. The company is capitalized for 2,500,000 shares with a par value of $1 each. For the first year the following gentlemen will form the directorate of the company: S. A. Norton, W. Mead, C. S. Simpson, T. D. Farnham and John D. Grace.

The above gentlemen have large interests in the Mount Pisgah property, consisting of 3,000 feet on Ironclad hill, together with the Cripple Creek Enterprise company with the right to mine under the streets and alleys of the Cripple Creek district. The same company acquired a controlling interest in the Big North American Copper company, the property is valued at $1,000,000, and is situated in the Grand Encampment country, and it is probable that in the near future that the above company's papers were filed.

THE COLORADO SPRINGS MINING STOCK EXCHANGE

The fall on the mining stock exchange yesterday was a very short one, due to the political excitement which is growing steadily and to other [illegible] traditions.

Only eight stocks were traded in and [illegible] these. It was decidedly an off day. El Paso took a tumble to $1.15, a drop of two cents in two transactions with but 1,000 sales sold. Vindicator likewise sold off on odd block of 500 shares, selling at 42. Doctor Jack, the miners' list by selling an eighth higher at 6½.

The prospects likewise were languid in tone. Anita was stronger at 2 but Gold Sovereign weakened to 4 cents. American was slightly healthier at 2½, while Rose Maud was unchanged.

Anchor was the only [illegible] stock dealt in. It was stationary at one cent per share.

HYMN SILENCES GAMBLING JOINT

WANDERING VIOLINIST PLAYS "NEARER, MY GOD TO THEE" AMID ODD SURROUNDINGS. NAME IS UNKNOWN.

Bisbee, Ariz., Oct. 22.—An unknown artist, whose skill with the violin passes understanding, went straight to the hearts of people assembled at the Turf saloon last night.

He secured his big victory when he reached "Nearer, My God to Thee." Every game in the big gambling house stopped on the instant that the strains from the eloquently wielded bow reached its hearers.

Hats came off in some instances when the men behind the tables threw up their hands. The latter were so moved thereby to the realization that the spiritual gave of the violinist began to weep, which brought on a stampede of the great crowd that thronged the various apartments of the place that few would not speed.

The name of the violinist who caused the commotion is not known. He is of the tramp and hobo.

A GERMAN DUKE PROSECUTES WOMAN

Accuses Her of Stealing from His Aunt, the Duchess Amelie, Says Case Charges Made.

Trouble [illegible] has been developed [illegible] during the last week over a deal in which [illegible] of the Emperor of Germany, appear as principals, and Frederic Miller, who is a young German woman of noble birth. He accuses her of having stolen a diamond brooch from the duke, the Duchess Amelie, to whom the [illegible] acted as companion for several years between [illegible]. Franklin Mitchell, an American [illegible] the extraordinary charge that Duke Ernst caused her to be kidnapped by Arabs when she was traveling with the duchess in Egypt, and is now [illegible] which she says took from her in Egypt and also for a large sum of money which she says she lent to the duchess.

The theft of the young woman on the charge of theft was first set for October, 1903, but has been postponed several times since. It is not yet finished and until it has been disposed of the civil courts, though Frau Franklin Mitevsky is bringing her suit against the duke, have refused to grant her a hearing.

The trouble is occasioned by Duke Ernst seven years ago accompanying his aunt. The duchess at that time was 79 years old, but she found the care of keeping a year which the duke allowed her too small for her needs, and is said to have borrowed freely from her companion. As security for the loans she is said to have changed her original will under which her jewels, valued at $10,000, were left to the duke, and made Fraulein Miller the sole beneficiary. Friends of the [illegible] soon took steps to remove his aunt from the influence of her companion. The means devised are said to have been nothing less than the kidnapping of the young woman.

In the winter of 1901, while she was traveling in Egypt with the duchess, [illegible] Cairo and thrown into a closed carriage. Conveyed to a small and dirty room in a native quarter, she knew nothing of the reasons for her detention until it is said, an agent of Duke Ernst, named Blumenthal, visited her and demanded her signature to a document in which she renounced all claims against the Duchess Amelie and promised never to see or communicate with her again.

The fraulein sturdily refused to consent and demanded her right as a German citizen to communicate with her consul. The request was granted, but it is said the consul, after hearing her story, refused to interfere. He told her, instead, that her trunks had been searched and $4,000 which was found there confiscated, though it was to be restored to her on her return to Germany. Access to her baggage was denied her, and after interminable delays she was marched down to a steamship wharf and then taken like a criminal under escort on board a steamer bound for Naples.

Without money and still wearing the thin summer clothes in which she had visited the bazaar the day she was made a prisoner, she fell an easy victim to the bitter cold of the sea voyage, and when she landed in Italy lay at death's door for weeks, suffering from inflammation of the lungs. On the death of the duchess, a few months later, she received none of the money she had left her royal mistress nor any of the jewels promised her. Her suit against the duke was instituted, and at the same time she made a formal request to the German government asking for the punishment of the German consul in Cairo for participating in her kidnapping, detention and deportation. Though no legal decision has been reached on any of the issues popular feeling is strongly in favor of Fraulein Miller's case.

STARVING GIRL WILL HIDE FROM WORLD

PAIN AND DESIRE FOR FOOD HAVE VANISHED AND SHE BELIEVES SHE COULD KEEP ON FOREVER.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 22.—Steadfastly adhering to her vow that she will not partake of food for two months, Victoria Kopwicz, who seeks through self-denial a divine cure for an ailment which five baffled the skill of physicians has determined that during the last two weeks of her fast she will seclude herself in her little room in the rear of No. 178 Ferry street and spend all her waking hours in prayer and religious meditation. Although for five weeks she has swallowed nothing except a glass of water now and then and a few sips of strong coffee every morning, she has remained sufficiently [illegible] to continue her attendance at the Polish church of St. Stanislaus.

She will keep up these church visits, she says, until the completion of the sixth week of her fast, when she will shut herself in her room, permitting no one to enter except a few friends.

The fact that she still lives has given hope to her friends that she may be able to survive her self-imposed ordeal. Indeed, she says, in her trust in divine aid that [illegible] to share her faith. In the [illegible] of her list not a [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible].

SHORT STORIES BY AUTHORS

A LUCKY BLUNDER.

By W. R. ROSE.

THE postman rapped a half dozen times on Russell Wallace's door and passed along. Russell dropped the morning paper and hurried to the door. Then he raised the letter with a disappointed look on his face.

He was still staring at it when the door of the adjoining office opened and a young woman appeared. She was pretty, with a certain air of refinement about her appearance that might mean much. Russell looked up as she entered.

"Have I been prompt to-day?" she asked. "Where is your book?"

He waved his hand and turned back to the library table.

"Here it is," he muttered, and resumed his easy chair.

"Miss Cicely Hammond."

Her startled eyes disappeared in the direction of the door that connected the two offices, and Russell saw the door close behind her.

He had not seen her since their last interview, and he had thought of her many times.

The short sentence she had spoken that day haunted his every waking hour. He had tried to analyze its meaning, but failed. He had not thought it possible that she could be married. No, he was sure, from the look in her eyes, that she was heart free. Then she was engaged. Why had she not told him? He had asked her to be his wife, and she had not refused him. She had simply asked him to wait. He had waited, and now this letter from her, which he had just received, was the result.

He looked at it again. It was from Paris, and was dated the day before she had left New York. It was brief, and read:

"DEAR RUSSELL: I AM MARRIED."

He had thrown it down from him and stared blankly at the wall. Then he laughed.

The short sentence did more than he had thought it possible for any sentence to do. It had killed his love. He could not realize it, but he knew it was dead. He had easily seen that he was free from her point of view.

A little later as he sat back in a reclining chair in the private office, in which he had settled himself to read the letter, he was thinking of the strange fascination that Miss Hammond had had for him. He had been thinking of her as a perfect woman, and had been proud of the fact that she had promised to be his wife. Now he was free, and he was glad of it. He was sure of it. He had been mistaken in his estimate of her character, and was glad of it
